

Benefits

Are your student diners concerned about the nutrition content of their food? More and more, nutrition is on people's minds. The easy-to-use web application provides students and campus staff with convenient nutrition analyses of the foods you serve. Run NetNutrition over the web as part of your campus website, or provide nutritional facts via a kiosk right in the dining and residence halls. NetNutrition makes it easy to keep food data in one database, yet makes it available anywhere—in dining halls or via the web. The flexibility of the NetNutrition application makes it ideal for simple integration into your current campus web presence.

NetNutrition is designed to enhance service and increase sales, simultaneously. Foodservice managers can use the system to highlight "heart healthy" menu items, helping to market healthy food. NetNutrition also provides an opportunity to advertise products to patrons and potential patrons through the inclusion of advertising and promotional messages online.

For Colleges and Universities

Overview

NetNutrition® from CBORD® provides online access to a complete set of nutritional data for menu items. A component of Foodservice Suite® (FSS), it allows dining patrons to make more informed food choices. Customers access NetNutrition pages from a kiosk or any computer using a web browser to find clear, accurate nutritional information. The system can be operated as an Internet or intranet product.

Nutrition information just a click away

Customers can see information for any menu selection or any meal. Diners can select food based on dining hall or food category. Then, they simply select their desired foods from a list, choose the number of servings they desire for each selected item, and view nutritional information quickly, easily, and in a familiar format.

You can organize your data by:

- Nutritional content (e.g., low fat)
- Time of day (e.g., breakfast items)
- Special events (e.g., Valentine's Day specials)
- Or any other way you want!
